

DAILY READING PLAN

Your Story Matters:

Reconciliation

Week of November 10, 2019

This week we're writing another chapter in our faith story. It's the chapter about broken relationship, and about the power of forgiveness and reconciliation. This could be a really difficult chapter for you to write. Broken relationships, especially those that remain unresolved, can leave a painful scar on our heart. So, as you write this chapter invite the Holy Spirit to fill you both with insight and with healing. And along the way, never forget that through Christ we have been reconciled with God forever. Let the healing of that relationship inspire more reconciliation in your life (Romans 12:18).

Here are some prompts to help you in writing this chapter:

- As you think back on your life, what broken relationships come to mind? What happened in each? While our tendency is to see the other person's blame, can you honestly see your part in the conflict in retrospect?
- Which broken relationships have you forgiven? In which ones are you still holding a grudge? Why?
- Which broken relationships have experienced reconciliation? How did that happen?
- Which broken relationships remain unreconciled? What is preventing reconciliation?
- How has God shaped your heart and moved in your broken relationships? How would you like God to work in those relationships now?
