Everything within us is grounded in Something beyond us. To say that we are “spirited” people acknowledges that everything within us – all that we are, have been, and hope to be is grounded in Something beyond us. To be spirited, alive, inspired, animated, and enthused is to recognize that we have a Source, and understanding this becomes essential for thriving.

This week, during the solar eclipse, the moon’s shadow was cast across the earth. The moon can be a mysterious thing, affecting tides and moods and night vision. We marvel at its beauty and study its changing phases. But the moon is dark; it has no light of its own. The moon is illuminated by its source, the sun. We, too, reflect our Source. Everything within us is grounded in Something well beyond us.

- Have you ever felt a deep connection between external beauty, like the moon, and your internal sense of inspiration or spirit? How did that connection make you feel that grounded in something beyond yourself?
- What external sources contribute to the way you shine, or thrive? How does your life reflect the influence of that source? Why is this awareness important for your sense of thriving?

Daily Breath Practice from Paul Gauche’s sermon, reminding ourselves that breath is a gift:

1. Find a quiet and comfortable space to sit with both feet on the floor, hands on your lap, and arms on your legs.
2. Take a few moments to focus on your breath, inhaling through your nose and exhaling through your mouth.
3. Reflect on the idea that each breath is a gift from the Creator. Instead of thinking of it as something you take, consciously receive, welcome, and absorb each breath.
4. Consider reciting a verse or affirmation, such as “The spirit of God has made me, and the breath of the Almighty gives me life ... and more life.”
