Lessons in Connection

Prayer by Rev. Sarah Speed
A Sanctified Art LLC | sanctifiedart.org

*It's been a long day,
long enough to complain,
long enough to wine and dine my
disappointment,
to give weariness
keys to the house.
But then you get the giggles
dancing with the dog in the kitchen.
Paws-sliding, tail-wagging,
side-cramping giggles.
I can hear it from across the house.
Your joy burrows its way
through the cracks in my armor
and then we are both laughing,
gulping for joyous, electric air.
And that's when I know—
if you grab my hand,
if you ask me to dance,
if our weary human souls can
make room for connection,
then we will survive.
Joy will take root.
Love will keep
her keys to the house.*

Elizabeth probably has a lot of questions for God – questions about her age, about God's outrageous timing, and about why she had to endure so many, many childless years. Because at this point in her life she is weary.

Mary probably has a lot of questions for God – questions about her age, about God's outrageous timing, and about why she's asked to endure this pregnancy when she is so young. Because the thought of it makes her weary.

Are these normal concerns, given their situations? Or do these anxieties keep them from experiencing joy? How do they balance joy with legitimate concern? Is it possible to feel fear about what's coming and a wild, exuberant joy at the same time? What does that look like? What changes when you experience these feelings in community? What happens when Elizabeth and Mary are together?

Think about the most joyful moments in your life. Were you alone? Can you be joy-filled by yourself? Or is joy most suited for community? How does your answer affect the way you live into this Advent season?
