The Bible is complex and multi-layered, but it invites all of us to lean in and look closer as it reveals, story by story, who God is ... and also who we are.

From the beginning, we imagine a God that keeps speaking to us through these stories of redemption and hope. But along the way we've lost the fullness of the message. So much of the story can get lost in translation. Lost in the literal translation from Hebrew and Greek to English. Lost in different cultural contexts. Lost in repetition, lulling us into a familiarity that strips the story of its power.

It's like looking in a window. You can't always see the whole room from your vantage point. Sometimes you need a second window, or a third, in order to see into every corner. Sometimes you can never see the whole thing. It's an exploration, a discovery, that invites you to look again and again from new angles.

We are called to trust the story, turning each page with the desire to find what's been lost in translation.

Who Am I?

I chose the woman at the well because even though we jumped from Genesis to John, this biblical text shows how a story can have different angles and multiple layers. This is my favorite story in the bible, and I have preached it in many different ways. This being my first time preaching here at Prince of Peace, I wanted to give you a glimpse into who I am as well as explore who Jesus calls us. When Jesus shows us our identity through him, that great gift causes us to go and tell what Jesus has done for us. It is such great news that we want everyone to hear, everyone to experience it, everyone to know who they and whose they are.

Through my telling of my own story, our identities change from place to place with our different experiences and the people we encounter along the way. BUT one thing that never changes is that we are a child of God, who God extends a life-giving promise through Jesus no matter what!
